“ Whether it was the first motorcycle I ever remember him havian which was a black color Kawasaki Or his 1985 Harley Davidson red sportster Or his 2000 Harley dalisten purple sportster My dad loved his bikes and giving me my sisters rides on them My dad always sa riding on a bike As one of the truest forms of freedom that there is For him being able to share that with me and my sisters Was one of the happiest moments in his life And he installed A love for motorcycles lon not just myself But my sister's as well. I also recall when I first got my first video game system The original Nintendo I got the Top Gun video game It was never a competition between me and my dad to see who could get to the highest level it was actually the hardest part of the game that There was and that was landing the plane on the aircraft Carrier The only time we actually competed on any video game with one another and with my sisters was when we played duck hunt. There were also various sayings and phrases my dad used over the years that talk with me A lot of which I used to this day. Even being the mischievous troublemaker that I was growing up My dad Always tried to install a good work Ethic And be respectful Things that at times I took for granted But as I grew up and became more responsible A lot of those lessons That he tried to teach me that I was so unreceptive tdo are the same lessons it is that I installed in my ls daughter Tashena. I also remember how he would never Miss on Nebraska football game It was A guarantee that comes Saturday if the corn huskers were playing ourTV was tuned in to the game.
