“ Echoing my sister's and brother's comments - I, too, have many fond memories of Bob's involvement in our family and farming operations - both working and playing. Bob taught me just about everything I ever knew about horses and riding. He also showed me how to re-load ammunition, not to mention quite a few mechanical skills. We worked closely together in both farming and hog production operations. When Bob and his family decided to move out to Western Nebraska, Dad chose to close down the hog production facility because, he told me, he didn't think he would ever find another man as good as Bob to run it. I enjoyed a couple of pheasant hunting trips and some fishing with Bob after he retired. I was pleased to note - when I visited the Hamilton County Veteran's Memorial in Aurora - that Bob's name and my own were inscribed in the same panel.

My deepest sympathy to Darlene, Andy, Kent, Kevin, Amy and families - and also to all of Bob's sisters and brothers.

“ Bob was important to our family's farming operation when I was growing up. But my most important personal memories have to do with a shared love of horses and riding. Bob pastured several horses in the small pasture adjacent to their house, where I watched impatiently for this beautiful 2 year old sorrel gelding get old enough to break and ride. I finally bought my beloved "Niki". It was short for Sputnik, launched earlier that year, because he "put me into orbit" the first time I tried to ride him! Thankfully, Bob worked with Niki and me to train both of us for years of joy in the saddle. He was patient and hard working, and greatly appreciated by the Tylers.
