“ Last month when I visited Roger, leaned down and kissed his cheek and said hello Spike. He looked up at me with a great big smile and said I haven't heard that in a long time. I don't believe he knew who I was but we had a wonderful visit talking about Hardy and the grandparents and memories of the past. Every once in a while his eyes would light up like he remembered. In my memories he's a cousin that I loved dearly and always had time for me. In the 50s taught me how to dance 🥰
